Billy Shidler is remembered by children and adults alike all over the world. His contributions to science, geography, and more are still being calculated today. I believe his greatest contributions are still yet to be uncovered, but that his discovery of the Worm Hole propelled him into riches and fame.

Billy Shidler was born on October 27, 1971 in Rennselaer, Indiana. As a baby, there was no information to suggest he would become this widely-known explorer. His parents, Shirley and Bill, were hard workers who did all they could to take care of their children. Can you believe there were five brothers in the house - no sisters!

During his schooling years, Billy attended West Central Elementary School. It was a normal school and Billy really liked certain subjects. Some of his favorite subjects were geography and Spanish. This might explain why Billy enjoyed traveling as he aged. Furthermore, he showed his leadership by being active in student council.

Even at his death, Billy Shidler would not hesitate to say marrying Jeannie, his wife of over 100 years, was the highlight of his life. They met while in class together at Purdue University, located in W. Lafayette, IN. During class, Billy's stomach would growl, and Jeannie, who was very kind, offered him a candy bar to soothe his stomach. After a couple of years engaged, the two married in 1994. They had two children - Bransen and Kalena. Both of these children achieved fame on their own too!

Professionally, Billy Shidler.....
